'One Scotch, one bourbon, one beer' by Big Blues Amos Melbourne. Margarita Phil' by Jimmy Buffett: Anyone can listen to it without wanting to dance feverishly and the flame of fire in his hair is a stone! 'Scotch and soda': There's no more languid drinking song than this, even when the Kingston trio sang it. Sinatra's one for my baby (one more for the road), 'eventually wind down the song bar. Finally — the waiter is like a mother to me by Salim Gaillard. — Dale DeGroff, author of The Craft of cocktail and president of the American Cocktail Museum I have quite a few favorites, but I limited my options to two male vocalists, two females, and a useful one. Alone Together' by Gary Williams, a young British vocalist whose gentle voice is just perfect for standards. I can hear glasses dotted in the background when I put this on. John Prolix's 'Moon and Sand' is a great show for this singer, who puts a new spin on the classic and writes his own original music, too. Shirley Horn's 'Here to Life,' with a luscious orchestra by Johnny Mandel, is one of the most perfect albums ever. Her vocals are foreplay, wisdom, and earthen, and strings go straight to the heart. The 'Rosie Solves Swingin' Puzzle' by Rosemary Clooney and Nelson Riedel is one of my favorites of all time. I'll end up having romance with pianist Peggy Adair, a ballerina that would be great and her interpretations of the standards are fantastic. — Michael Weinstein, singer and pianist I've heard of these 25 years ago, when they first turned legal. They're still great drinkers songs: 'Jelly,' who. 'Mess around,' Ray Charles; 'Lots of fun,' Commander Cody; — Chris Weld, owner, Berkshire Mountain Distillery 'floating at night' by Julie Cruise. 'I just have eyes on you by flamingos. 'Staring at the sun' via tv on the radio. Sherry by suicide. Sunday morning by velvet underground. — Moby, the pop star 'Big Butter and Eggs Man' for all the prohibition references, and because nothing is better to drink than jazz, especially Mr. Armstrong's century. Bessie Smith 'Me and My Gin' - the perfect blues for a late afternoon sip. Mae West 'call me Sister Hunky Tonk,' which reminds us that women and her whiskey can be so, very sexy. Slo-Jane Weisz with Loretta Lynn' Portland, Oregon. And for the egg cocktail the morning after night: How do you like your eggs in the morning? by Dean Martin and Helen O'Connell. — Lenell Smothers, owner of LeNell's Ltd.: A Wine & Spirit Boutique, Brooklyn Is My Recipe for a Perfect Evening: Walking in the Door, Kickng Your Shoes, Switching on 'Time I Took A Holiday' by Louie - the perfect easy groove for the end of a stressful day. Once drinks have been poured, and followed up with 'Waterloo Sunset' by Kinks. Plant yourself in your deepest chair, bliss to John Hiatt's bitter sweet lipstick Are you feeling a little depressed? Indulging with Elvis Costello's dark but tender 'favorite hour'. If your mind frame is more mellow, play his wife Diana Krall Blues' stop this world. Then samba in the kitchen for Paul McCartney's 'Bluebird' and enjoy cooking dinner for a change. — Holly Hughes, editor of the best annual food writing series My MP3 Player has 5000 songs on it, but these just look right: 'Touch of your lips' by Tony Bennett and Bill Evans. Let's do it, ' version of Louis Armstrong - you've got some Cole Porter on the list. It's gorgeous by Diana Krall' - Gershwin and Krall are the perfect combo. 'Manhattan' by Deere Blossom - you can't get cocktails without 'Manhattan,' even in New Orleans. 'Road' 66 by Nat Cole - his vocals, pace, and winning makes it just a happy hour every time for me. — Chris McMillian, a Renaissance waiter in The Bear Marquette Bar is uncommon in New Orleans you've got something out of the Canon Nova Bossa, and you can't beat Getz/Gilberto by Stan Getz and João Gilberto. She's got a 'girl from Ipanema, 'of course,' but I love 'Desafinado.' it's kind of vulgar, but you'll have some Sinatra. Nothing says you've made the end of the day better than 'just lonely, 'September of my years,' or 'in the little wee hours. Then the European music album by the modern jazz quartet of 1960. This narrative of piano, bass, drums, and vibraphone has a frosted sound that makes me feel like I'm in the old stylish hotel lobby. Charlie Rich's 'Behind Closed Doors': He sings country music the way the soul singer. Later in the evening, 'At home / around midnight' by Julie London. — Tom Moon, author of 1,000 recordings before you die, this content is created and maintained by a third party, and is imported to this page to help users provide their email addresses. It can hit a conversation on a whim and somehow manages to find common ground with individuals from all walks of life. Travelling on its own can be incredibly eye-opening and enriching, but it will also provide us with skills that are necessary to be successful. Communication and interpersonal skills are traits that can be learned and honed. These skills are applicable in everyday life and can be translated into professional environments. We are inherently closed off for my first lonely travel experience, I had just arrived in San Francisco for an externship. There was a problem with our train and we had to turn into a new train on the next platform. A gentleman who was doing a polite talk decided that his job now was to help me transport my things to the next train despite the good will, and I was horrified. I wasn't used to the kindness of strangers, in fact I thought he was trying to steal me or worse. Fairly regional. He grew up in a tri-state area, and I had conditioned that you be very skeptical. Interacting with strangers seemed incredibly taboo. It is shameful to admit, but social skills have fallen by the side of the road. We've forgotten how to talk to each other the idea of hitting up a conversation with a stranger is a terrifying border line. But what is more frightening is that the lack of effective communication will eventually lead to a single life. Keeping the passion alive said a very wise man once before committing fully to someone, take them on a journey. This wise man is (Bill Murray) and he is telling the truth travel can be a very weak time for many, often the worst can stand out in people. But if you are able to overcome the inevitable obstacles that will arise during your journey, travel has been proven to strengthen relationships. It gives yourself and your partner a chance to share a common goal. Just being in a different environment, free from all of your day to the daily commitments that you tend to get in the way will help rekindle romance and intimacy. It will give you both the opportunity to revisit some issues that would normally start an argument - in a safe and romantic environment. Couples who regularly travel together have reported having a more effective connection with each other than those who do not. You won't see the sameWorld the greatest Epiphany one can experience as they immerse themselves in the travel lifestyle is the realization that not everyone thinks about the way they do. Not everyone lives in the same way that different cultures live and host different philosophies and priorities. Breathe, relax, and enjoy even in a place where results are expected immediately, I did not take well to the idea of waiting. I mean, what's the wait? I have placed my application and I want it now it is clear that the impatience was stained all over my face the server who took my order ever asked me innocently, why do you look upset? You have a few extra moments to enjoy life before you receive your food. He was so right. I had no place to be so I took his painted advice in the deep breath, taking in all of the beauty that surrounded me. Patience is a virtue. When you travel, you have no choice but to be patient. Learning to roll with punchesNot everything works out as planned, things must be going wrong. When you are traveling, you are exceptionally vulnerable to these incidents, with very little security if things happen do not go your way. This can be incredibly nerve-racking the first few times around. This could even deter some from taking a decision to continue. If you can hack and take hits as they come, you will eventually develop the patience of the saint. Bad things will happen, let them. You'll find another way when things aren't going well, not only you have to be patient, but also adaptable. You should be able to remember and develop strategies, or at least accept in hand and roll with it. It's not the case - it's your reactions to the landslide of positive effects, your increase in patience and adaptability in turn will make you a nicer, less skeptical person. Because at this point, you can get it. We are all human beings, doing our best to get what we have. So just stay calm conflicts will arise, and how you choose to deal with them will determine the outcome. Alternative forms of communicationeach of being new and unfamiliar can seem terrifying. Especially when you are traveling abroad, specifically if you are travelling alone. If you're like me, you enjoy a fairly abrasive blow of culture shock. Everything is so strange, incredibly different. This can make communication difficult. I literally don't speak their language. Chances are, I won't become fluent overnight or anywhere in the near future. But I can still ease my struggle by learning some key phrases in the language of the place I visit to get it in everyday life. Probably not, I'll butcher pronunciation. The average person will get the essence of what I try to say and appreciate the effort regardless of the poor implementation. Non-verbal communication will become a blessing in disguise for your savings. You will develop the ability to convey your meaning without words. Without realizing, you may begin to reverse the behavior of those around you to lay the foundation of common ground. Only in this short time, you are developing. You've picked up new behaviors that will turn into your current personality and habits. This experience literally becomes a part of you, changing how you think and how you behave.
